

Volunteer Role	Patient Transport Driver - Central
Responsible to	St John Scotland Head Office & Central Patient Transport Team
Where (Location)	Central
Time commitment	Regular & committed
Volunteer Role Description	St John Scotland works in partnership with the Scottish Ambulance Service and local NHS boards to provide Patient Transport for people attending oncology and renal clinics. All passengers are referred to us by the Scottish Ambulance Service or NHS clinics. Dialysis requires regular treatment, three times a week, often for long periods of time. Patients currently use a mixture of transport to get to their treatments, including ambulance transport, self-transport, taxis and other voluntary services. The support provided by St John Scotland's Patient Transport service means patients have access to free, friendly, reliable transport and the support of volunteers, while our model provides a significant financial saving for the NHS. As a Patient Transport Driver, it will be your role to transport renal patients to and from the Renal Unit at Forth Valley Royal Hospital (FVRH) in Larbert. This service is completely free to patients. Drivers will need access to their own car and all vehicles and drivers require full insurance.
